- 7 years in Shanghai as co-founder of China's first joint venture technology bank
- 17+ years in venture capital and technology finance in Asia and Europe
- Haas MBA 2009
Hypothesis

Silicon Valley is the undisputed innovation capital of the world. But other countries also want to leverage innovation as means to grow their economies. In fact, China currently has the 2nd largest venture capital market in the world and celebrates huge tech giants such as Huawei, Tencent (Wechat), Alibaba, etc. However, true innovation isn’t easy and China has its challenges.

After one week in China, visiting venture capital firms, startups, and a few tech giants, we will be in a position to uncover the answer the question:

Will China become a true global innovation superpower?
